

A Community-Based Model

Educators Rising is a community-based initiative, in which chapters at schools feed teacher preparation programs at institutes of higher education with the support of district leadership, State Departments of Education, and local philanthropists. These entities come together to provide pathways to grow and diversify the profession.

PDK International, the parent nonprofit of Educators Rising, assembled an expert panel to create a best practices document, Grow the Teaching Profession, a blueprint to establishing a place-based “grow your own” program. Local communities can use this guide to start planning their own approach.

Growing your own teacher pathway helps your schools build a robust teaching population — and it makes financial sense. After all, it costs an average of $10,000 (to $21,000 in urban areas) to recruit and onboard a teacher.*

Almost 60% of teachers come back and teach within 20 miles of where they graduated high school. Fifty-one percent of Educators Rising members are students of color AND are 400% more likely to enter the teaching field than students in other CTE programs. Shouldn't your community have an Educators Rising Program to ensure that you can grow your own teachers?

What is the Educators Rising Academy and what does it provide?

Educators Rising Academy Curriculum Instructional Materials

*This flexible curriculum — rooted in the Educators Rising Standards — includes nearly 60 lesson topics to date organized into five domains: *You, Your Students, Your Classroom, Your Community, Your Profession.

Resources for Clinical Experiences

Providing students with hands-on opportunities to experience teaching and refine their practice is a cornerstone of the EdRising Academy program.

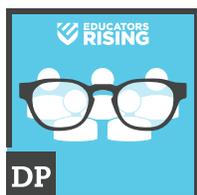

Teacher Leader Training and Support

Any school that chooses to implement the EdRising Academy curriculum also receives training for teachers leading the course. Opportunities are available to attend in-person training at the annual conference.

Access to a National Network

*The Educators Rising membership network connects peers and experts around the country who are focusing on the same issues and challenges. Participating teachers and students are afforded the opportunity to benefit from professional development, best practices, expertise, and discounts to the national conference.

Educators Rising is a high school and middle school career and technical student organization (CTSO) eligible for CTE and Perkins Funds. Components include:

- Chapters that provide students a safe space for support and networking
- A standards-based curriculum that delivers a structured way for students to prepare for their future profession including clinical supervisions and microcredentials
- Competitions that give students a chance to grow and develop skills they will need as professionals
- Conferences that offer a state and national stage where students can network and be recognized for their achievements
- Collegiality that comes from being a part of a network, a family of professionals, and a movement

Educators Rising Collegiate provides Teacher Prep and Education Policy Programs a reliable pipeline of passionate aspiring educators. Our collegiate chapters help grow the profession by offering supports to keep students on the path to graduate and get certified, while our programming to increase diversity is designed to lower the access gap with respect to content and ability to pass state summative assessment requirements.

“I joined Educators Rising because I am passionate about education and because I want to help bring about societal change by increasing diversity in education so students of color can relate to someone who looks like them and understands their struggles.”

Jose Carrillo, Texas State University, National Student Officer

Who is PDK's Educators Rising?

Mission

Educators Rising is cultivating a new generation of highly skilled educators by guiding young people on a path from high school through college and into their teaching careers. By working with aspiring educators who reflect the demographics of their communities and who are passionate about serving those communities through public education, Educators Rising is changing the face of teaching.

Vision

A clear pathway in every school district in America for young people who want to serve their communities as highly skilled educators.
